Ossawatimie Brown.

The previous history of this hoary convict, if the truth could be made known, would scarcely recommend him to executive clemency; for his pathway in Kansas, as described to us by eye-witnesses, was one of burnings and butchery—charred ruins and the mangled bodies of murdered men indicated his presence as surely as similar remains did that of the remorseless savage to the pioneers of Kentucky. Solitary upon some ridge of the prairies the traveler might come upon a sheetless wagon, that ship of the plains, rifled of its contents and its cattle, and near by lay all that is left of the murdered teamster. Such are the campaigns that have fitted this old man for his late foray upon Harper's Ferry. Having long escaped the halter in a Territory without law, he has been emboldened by this success to attempt similar exploits in the State of Virginia; and now he lies a condemned felon at the mercy of his bitterest enemy.

We do not recall these events of Brown's previous life to steel God. Wise against the exercise of the prerogative of mercy; for there are many reasons why we think it expedient that his life should be spared. Not that we do not think he deserves to die, if ever a traitor and a murderer and a robber did; but it would place the South upon a vantage ground in the eyes of the whole world; it would show that the spirit of Legree does not pervade our people; that, conscious of the rectitude and humanity of our institutions, we can afford to be magnanimous to the very Barabbas of our enemies. He is not only a spy, which considered the accomplished Andre to an ignominious death, which, if anything, has left a stain on the memory of Virginia's greatest name, but is amenable to almost every crime in our Criminal Code; still he is the very fittest subject upon which to display the chivalric sentiment of the South.

The miserable old man has been denied by his Republican friends, and even as Peter did his Lord, they have thrice, yea, many times, and with cursing and swearing, have declared they "know not the man." They are even attempting to precipitate his fate, and render his execution doubly certain, by their denunciations of Governor Wise; for they believe that such a course toward a man of his peculiar idiosyncrasy would lash him to rage, and, with the sagacity of the accomplished metador, they attempt to blind him to the advantage a martyr's death would bring to them. The more honest of them are already seeking historical parallels for him, and Cullen Bryant has an array, embracing Arnold and Rieuzy, and even the sainted martyr of Bohemia, to whom to liken the prisoner at Charlestown. This, to say the least of it, is premature, if not highly imprudent, and is a blazonry of their tudies which a vigilant enemy may take advantage of.

If old John Brown is executed, there will be thousands to dip their handkerchiefs in his blood; relics of the martyr will be paraded throughout the North; pilgrimages will be made to his grave, and we should not be surprised to hear of miracles wrought there, as at the tomb of Thomas à Becket. The blood of this martyr would be as seed to this financial church, and as that of Joe Smith to the church of Latter-Day Saints. It could be called in attestation of the purity of their faith; and Gov. Wise would be compared to Julian the apostate, or to Gracchus of Claverhouse.

There is a fitness in this act of clemency in keeping with the spirit of the times. If an European despot, who maintains his position solely by the assistance of the Zouaves and the Turcos; with millions of discontented subjects impatient of his rule; with treason plotting at his palace gates, and himself surrounded by assassins as subtle as the Thugs of India—if such a man in such a position with a single dash of the pen can strike the chains from thousands of captives, and restore to their country and friends thousands of exiled sinners, many of them with abilities in comparison with which the mental endowments of Seward and Lincoln and Chase are as stupidity—if this can be done with the applause of half a universe, think of the shame which must rest upon the Commonwealth of Virginia with a million of seceders, themselves the sovereignty, and a quarter of a million of slaves held under patriarchal rule, whose loyalty under temptation is an astonishment to many who call themselves patriots; we say, think of the shame that must rest upon her, if her security demands and requis the blood of one old brave dead man.

The London journals report that the annual demand of penny postage stamps in Great Britain is little short of 500,000,000. Supposing the year to contain 300 working days, that would give for every working day about 1,666,666 stamps to be manufactured. Something, that, for the printer to do. No very impossible task, however, when we remember the small size of the stamp, and the number that might be printed by a single stroke of the press, or one revolution of a cylinder machine.

Judge Ranney, late Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio, received more votes than ever was given for a Democrat in the State before—four hundred more than were cast for Mr. Buchanan in 1856; although the total vote of the State was thirteen thousand less than in 1856.

Frank P. Blair, Jr., of Missouri, has recently emancipated, in the Circuit Court of St. Louis, five of his slaves.

That is a bid of five thousand dollars for the Republican nomination for Vice President.

Money Matters.

It is surprising to see the difference a few hundred miles will make in the value of money. In Louisville we observe the utmost quiet in financial circles, with Eastern exchange dull at 1/2 per cent., while in St. Louis exchange is scarce at 1 per cent., and such a stringency in money as to depress the value of real estate far below what it would have brought a few months ago. We notice a sale of a house and lot in one of the most desirable localities for the sum of $22,500, which scarcely covers the cost of the building, while the lot itself, without the improvement, was valued at $22,800. This comes of inflating the value of property on the part of speculators, and the general system of puffing that has obtained in that city for many years. Strangers are deceived by lying advertisements, and induced to invest their money, and only find out the imposition when compelled to sell. It is a species of drappage, but is considered more respectable than the game that engages many small operators to the penitentiary.

The completion of the Nashville railroad is a most important event for the prosperity of Louisville. She has been outstripped for some years by the flash cities of the North and West; but her improvement has been solid, and the work of her own people and capital, while these other cities have been built up by eastern capitalists, and we regret to say, by not a few deluded people from our own State. If the money that has gone out of Kentucky to build vacant warehouses in Keokuk, Chicago, and other towns, had been expended in Louisville, it would have made a city equal to St. Louis, and would have secured to the owners a permanent and fair remuneration. Property is, however, rapidly appreciating in Louisville, and we know of no investment so likely to enrich the maker, as a speedy purchase of property in that city. Its railroad connections are now perfected with the whole Southern country—with New Orleans, Mobile, Charleston, Memphis, and every southern city of importance; and this is an advantage not possessed by any western city. It is the southern trade by tide-water that has contributed more than anything else to the prosperity of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore; and Louisville now stands in more immediate and rapid connection with it than any of these towns, and must prosper accordingly.

Cotton has already been received at Louisville over the Nashville road, and its manufacture there will soon become one of the leading branches of industry—the unlimited water power derived from the falls defying the more costly competition of steam.

Hogs remain in stagnation. Mr. Macklin is paying $4 gross, and no better price is to be paid in Louisville or Cincinnati. The weather is too warm for slaughtering, but is admirable for fattening, and will doubtless contribute to an increased average in the weight of hogs, as also in the yield of lard.

By the arrival of the North America we have advices from Liverpool as late as the 20th, and the market reports are very favorable. Cotton, and also breadstuffs, have materially advanced, and at the close were very firm. This will be good news to the holders of grain; for upon a foreign demand is predicated the only hope of better prices.

The Government of Prussia is desirous to avail herself of the opening recently made by the Americans in China and Japan. It is now sending to the China seas an expedition, comprising three vessels, which carry a Counsellor of State with authority to conclude treaties with China, Japan, and Sam.

LOLA MONTZ.—This celebrated woman is now residing in Brooklyn, New York. She is said to have experienced a change of heart, and lately to have lived the life of a devout Christian. Lola need neither play nor preach hereafter, as her English husband, at his death, bequeathed her an annuity of $250 as long as she lived.

The laws of Vermont prohibiting the traffic of intoxicating liquors, have become the settled and approved policy of the State. The Governor calls the attention of the Legislature to the subject of the establishment of a reformatory school for juvenile offenders.

The paintings and other works of art belonging to the late Lord Northwick were recently sold at auction. Although the son and heir reserved for his own use several hundred specimens, the collections sold yielded the pretty little sum of $150,000.

Marshall M. Smith, of Mississippi, has been appointed by the President, Consul to Constantinople.

Proclamation by the Governor.

COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY,
Executive Department.

Another abundant harvest has been gathered; another year of multiplied blessings is fast drawing to a close. The labors of the farmer, the mechanic, the manufacturer, and the merchant, the professional man and the man of science, have been abundantly rewarded; commerce has revived, trade has improved, and thrift is apparent everywhere throughout the land. Neither war nor pestilence nor famine has afflicted us. Peace, plenty, and health have blessed a free, prosperous, and happy people. Providence has showered its blessings upon us as individuals, as a State, as a nation. We should return to Him the image of grateful hearts. In the eager pursuit of pleasure, of fortune, or of fame—in the excitement of our daily occupations—in the multifarious pursuits of life, we are too apt to forget Him from whom these bounties come, acknowledging no sovereign but Him, let us recognize the venerable custom of the "Jewish Feast of Weeks" appointed by Jehovah for his "chosen people." For the establishment of ad preservation then, of our free institutions—for the preservation of our lives and health—for our tranquility, prosperity, and happiness—for our general thrift and the untold blessings we enjoy as a State and a people—

I, BEHAIL MAGOFFIN, Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, do hereby appoint and set apart the 24th day of November next, as a day of THANKSGIVING AND PRAISE TO ALMIGHTY GOD, and recommend its appropriate observance by all the citizens of the Commonwealth.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the Commonwealth to be affixed. Done at Frankfort, this 11th day of October, A. D. 1859, and in the sixteenth year of the Commonwealth.

By the Governor: B. MAGOFFIN.
Thos. H. Moore, Jr., Secretary of State.
By Jas. W. Tate, Asst. Secretary.
